mast to feast his eyes once more, And busy fancy fond - - ly lends her aid.
 Ah! now, each dear, do - mes - tic scene he knew, Recall'd and cherish'd in a foreign clime, Charm with the magic of a moonlight view; Its colours
 Ad libitum
 mellow'd, not impair'd, by time.

True as the needle, homward points his heart,
 Thro' all the horrors of the stormy main;
 This, the last wish that would with life depart,
 To see the smile of her he loves again.
 When Morn first faintly draws her silver line,
 Or Eve's grey cloud descends to drink the wave;
 When sea and sky in midnight darkness join,
 Still, still he views the parting look she gave.
